Lawrence Y. Sherman, Republican, Choice for Senator From Illinois.

A SELF-MADE FARMER'S SON

Resembles Lincoln in Face, Habits, Humor and Ability to Tell Stories.

CRICAGO, April 13.—Lawrence G. Sherman, who beat Shelby M. Cullom by a plurality of nearly 50,000 in the Republican primaries in Illinois last Tuesday for the term in the United States Senate beginning March 4, 1913, is a man of the Abraham Lincoln type. It is believed that his victory in the primaries means his election by the next Legislature. Even if Illinois should be Democraic by 150,000.

peared at Springfield he looked more like a tired ploughman rather than an alert lawyer. Some of the lawmakers "reckoned" the stranger might be in the market for a gold brick, and others "allowed" it might be necessary to blindfold him to get him into the elevator at the State House, otherwise he would insist on walking up the stairs.

Sherman did not thrust himself into the limelight on the floor of the house, but before he had proceeded five minutes in his first speech every fellow member discovered he had something worth saying and that he said it well. Always after that Sherman's rising in his seat focussed the attention of every one in the room on him.

Mr. Sherman's use of invective and of kindly humor is refreshing. One of his most rotable speeches in the Illinois

Mr. Sherman's use of invective and of kindly humor is refreshing. One of his most notable speeches in the Illinois Legislature had for its theme "The Cream Colored Cow." He was speaking on a bill for an appropriation for a dairy association, or some organization of the sort. The speech was a mediev of wit and wisdom that set the whole State talking.

on the Presidency in November, it is tive head of the Illinois State Board of thought that the Republicans will have a Charities.

Mr. Sherman is described as a "conthought that the Republicans will have a majority of the legislative vote on joint ballot. There are a number of holdover Republican State Senators and the legislative districts are so arranged that only a tremendous landslide would deprive the party of control.

Mr. Sherman is described as a conservative progressive in his political ideas. His middle name is Yates. He is a third cousin of Richard Yates, Jr., who was Governor from 1909 to 1901. He belongs to the Masonic fraternity, the Mystic Shrine and the Knights of Pythias He makes his home in Springfield.

referred to as a man of the Lincoln type. The physical resemblance is marked, but in other respects Senator Cullom is not more like Abraham Lincoln than many another Senator has been in the last quarter of a century. Between Lincoln and Sherman the parallel is almost startling.

points. The physical likeness is striking. The life of the one suggests the life of the other in many respects.

the sad expression of his face in repose. coln's eyes were deep set, his cheeks sunken and heavily lined. So are the eyes and cheeks of Sherman. Lincoln was very tall and angular. Sherman is angular, but of average height.

Mr. Lincoln was careless of his personal appearance, so is Mr. Sherman. Lincoln preferred the garb which made him one with the everyday life and habits of his neighbors. Sherman objects to wearing evening clothes. A few years ago he had every had wormed the same type Line play for the second week has not yet been selected. After a two weeks season this spring it is hoped by the management to make the institution permanent next season when such plays as "Alice in Wen derland." "At the End of the Rainbow," and the Pinkle and the Fairles, will be acted by the children. The matiness for the two weeks beginning May 20 will start at 3:30. Sherman's face is of the same type. Lin-never had worn a dress suit. If he has one to-day it would be safe to wager that he bought it and uses it under protest. More than one function he has avoided because he hated to dress up and yet did not wish to be conspicuous through his unconventionality

Lincoln was a man of broad sympathies, day of democratic notions, a man of the people. So is Sherman. Besides the sad face and the gawky appearance, he has the winning drollery, the dry, keen humor and the story-telling habit for which Lincoln was famous. Sherman's storie; like Lincoln's, are not spun merely to entertain or to kill time, but they are intended to point a moral, to drive home an argument.

Mr Sherman is a native of Miami county, He was born November 8, 1858. Less than a year later he was brought to Illinois by his parents and this State has been his home ever since. The boy lived in McDonough county until he was 9 and then went with his father's family to Jasper county. His new home was on a farm and he attended the country school.

county. His new home was on a farm and he attended the country school.

At sixteen he went to work on his father's farm, and for three or four years all the schooling he had was acquired through his own efforts from books. One summer he accumulated from his earnings for helping his neighbors to thresh their wheat what was to him a big sum of money. He quite disgusted some of his acquaintances by spending the whole hoard for books, one of which was a dry-looking volume called "The Revised Statutes of Illinois, 1874."

A little later he found himself a student of law in McKendree College, from which he was graduated in 1882. Living up to his notion that to waste time is to commit a crime, he went from Jasper to McDonough County with a load of apples gathered from his father's orchard. He sold these apples to the townspeople of Macomb, the county seat of McDonough County, and delivered them in a one-horse wagon. He set his hand to other humble tasks, and with a little change ahead he entered the law office of Judge Damon G. Tunnicliffe.

A little later he was elected City Attorney of Macomb, which was exactly the kind of job with which Shelby M. Cullom started his career of fifty-eight years in puolic office. After two more years Mr. Sherman was reelected county judge and he refused a second term because he wanted to "get down to brass tacks" in the practice of his profession. In a very few years he became one of the leading attorneys of Central fillinois. He was elected to the lillinois House of Representatives in 1896. When he ap-ommissioner Stover Has Announced a New Policy for Central Park Lawns.

TO ALL MAY PARTIES: 'KEEP OFF THE GRASS"

MAYOR'S COMMITTEE IDEA

Seventeen Arrests Last Week-All Permits Revoked-Children Spoil Sod.

"Keep off the grass" signs that mean what they say adorn Central Park now. Seventeen prisoners in Yorkville court paid $2 fines last week for walking on the lawns. "No more May parties" is ex-pected to be the next announcement of Park Commissioner Stover.

The new Stover idea is to give the grass on the lawns a chance to grow. The change is said to be due in part to the representations made by the advisory late last night in which Andres Uresti, confer with the Park Commissioner, of was shot and perhaps mortally wounded which Alexander H. Spencer is the chair-which Alexander H. Spencer is the chairman. A committee of clergymen and other adult lovers of the park have also been urging Commissioner Stover to take steps to prevent the spoliation of the grass by childrens shoes.

What the committees suggested did not at first meet with the approval of the Commissioner, as it appeared to curtail the liberty that for years had been granted to crowds of visitors to walk upon the lawns. Visitors got accustomed to look trees it as their right to walk upon and says he was looking on with a view to interfering if violence were attempted. upon it as their right to walk upon any park lawn whenever they chose, and the Commissioner was reluctant to deprive them of any possible pleasure there. But members of the committees argued that the lawns were very shabby in past summers because of the trampling upon them. To have good lawns it would be necessary to keep people off, especially in spring when the grass is growing. It there was took a lot of argument to convince the ceremony Commissioner that the suggested policy was for the benefit of the greater part of the public, but he finally acquiesced

The first action was to send instructions to Police Captain McKeon of the Arsenal that no one except a park employee should be permitted to walk upon a Central Park lawn. The police got the idea that these instructions were untended to be obeyed, and they have been acting accordingly. During the last

It has been the custom for many years to issue special permits for the holder to walk on any lawn for any length of time to photograph or to study nature s bjects. All of that is now out out by the new regulation. The police have been instructed not to recountze these special permits. Members of the committee have pointed out to the Commissioner the advisability of taking other precautions for the presof taking other precautions for the preservation of the park and to prevent its further deterioration. Those ask that the pla ground feature be restricted as much as possible, so that the trees, shrubbery and grass may have a chance. Painted signs "Keep Off" have been stuck up on the lawns, so that visitors may know that the old custom of walking where are pleases is no larger prograited. may know that the old custom of walking where one pleases is no longer recognized.

The amount of damage done to the lawns by May parties and June walks is very considerable, members of the committee told the Commissioner The sod was often dug up, grass roots killed, branches torn from trees and other acts of vandalism done. The committees acknowkedged that the children got a good deal of enjoyment out of the outlings, but many of them often caught pneumonia or other diseases on the wet hood about bad boys breaking windows and interfering with people in the streets.

There was such a crowd of boys and girls—they swarmed for half a mile all around to see the fine new play space—that Benjamin Mann and Miss Katherine O'Brien, who are in charge of the ground, were hardly able to get the games started. It was really more than three policemen could do to get elbow room for tiny dancers in starched dresses.

Baby Evelyn Lyons started things by raising a flag that was ever so much bigger than herself. After that the girls of the Hamilton Fish Park Playground tripped through a pretty spring dance. Very small girls, costumed to make folks think they were Easter rabbits, did a bunny dance that came near going to pieces because little Miss Rose Teller didn't like the way that Sister Ruth Teller turned when they came to pretending that they were running for a lettuce patch. It's hard to practise for one twenty-fourth of one's entire age to get a thing right and then have a clumsy sister spoil things by a wrong turn.

After that there were three legged races, egg races, dumbbell drills, sack races, more dances in costume and pleasing sing by childish voices. Then there was a field meet for older boys.

The new playground will be open every day save Sunday from 10 A. M. to 6 P. M. in summer and fall.
